

Based on Newmans Indian Bradshaw 1879 (y), Travellers Guide 1891 (z), Ceylon Government Rlys Public TTs 1905 (a), 1922 (b), 1934 (c), 1954 (d) & 1978 (e) and Sri Lanka Rlys (SLR) public TT 2001 (f). Also, Indian Bradshaw 1927 (p), All-India TT 1930 (q), Public TTs 1960 (r), 1981 (s) & 1991 (t). and Working TTs 1937 (w1), 1943 (w2) & 1966 (w3).

f+: stations opened/reopened/renamed since 2001. #: other sources, including Railways of Sri Lanka (Hyatt) & Michael Stewart. Former names: [] Distances in Miles unless noted Km; Gauge 5' 6" & 2' 6" as noted;

All points served by passenger trains unless shown thus: (italics) or noted. y-f = yzabcdef etc.

* Estate platforms: Shown in Working TTs, these are primarily for goods traffic, but could officially be used by medical staff in emergencies. Some became public passenger stops in later years.

The spelling of many station names has varied slightly over the years, mainly due to inconsistent transliteration from Singalese to English. This particularly applies to the railcar or "Baby Train" stops opened in the late 1920's. The 1930 All-India TT contains many type-setting errors which have been ignored. Some name variations are dubious, several even today are clearly incorrect (e.g. Baseline Road shown as Basline Road). Even the station finder on the current Sri Lanka Railway and Wikipedia sites contain many spelling errors and inconsistencies and have generally been ignored, unless either new stations, reopened stations or obviously renamed stations.
